

Summary

Congress requires that all members of the electronic media covering news events on Capitol Hill be accredited by the Radio-Television Correspondents Galleries.

The Radio-TV Correspondents Galleries were created by the Congress to act on its behalf to facilitate electronic members of the electronic media covering news events on Capitol Hill.

Gallery credentials are required for news coverage inside the Capitol or on the Capitol grounds. Out of town reporters are not eligible for regular membership and should contact the House or Senate Gallery staffs for temporary credentials. The House Gallery number is 202/225-5214, and the Senate Gallery number is 202/224-6421.

Rules of Congress prohibit Gallery members from engaging in lobbying, advertising, publicity or promotion work for any individual, corporation, organization or government.

Current Members of Congress and the Vice President may be invited to speak in the Senate and House studios. Only Members of Congress may be interviewed in the House and Senate Gallery studios, booths and in the Capitol Visitors Center.

News coverage is regulated by the following rules. Please refer to the appropriate section of this manual for the full statement of each rule.

QUICK REFERENCE

Videotaping and stakeouts in the Capitol and the Congressional complex require permission and are prohibited outright in some areas.

Gallery members should keep safety in mind when walking in front of or walking behind a subject while recording audio or shooting video anywhere inside the Congressional complex.

There are designated locations outside and inside which may be used at any time by members of the Gallery for standups or interviews (see map inside back cover.)

Shooting video on the Capitol grounds with a tripod requires permission, except in designated locations (refer to maps).

Shooting video outside with portable equipment is generally unrestricted unless it impedes the flow of vehicular or pedestrian traffic.

Shooting video on the steps on the East Front and on the West Front of the Capitol is prohibited.

Coverage of House and Senate hearings must be arranged through the appropriate Gallery.

Pool coverage may be mandated in cases of heavily attended hearings.

You may not shoot live or recorded video images or record audio in the following areas:

In the House and Senate chambers.

Anywhere Congressional regulations prohibit video coverage such as House and Senate restaurants and cafeterias, some corridors on the second and third floors outside the House and Senate chambers, and areas closed to the public, etc.

GENERAL RULES

Videotaping and audio recording are permitted in the public areas of the House and Senate office buildings.

Gallery members must follow the directions of the Gallery staffs at all times.

Only current Members of Congress and the Vice President may be interviewed or make statements in the House and Senate Gallery studios or in other parts of the Galleries. (House committee witnesses may be interviewed in the House Gallery and Rayburn Studio on the day they are scheduled to testify.) The restriction does not apply to interviews given by credentialed members of the Congressional News Galleries.

Members of Congress (except the Speaker of the House, the House Majority and Minority Leaders, the Vice President, and Senate Majority and Minority Leaders) must be invited to appear in the House and Senate Gallery studios. Appearances on the House side must be at the invitation of a member of the Radio-Television Galleries. Appearances on the Senate side may be at the invitation of any member of any Congressional News Gallery. Members of the Galleries who issue invitations for news conferences must be present in the Galleries during interviews.

News conferences with Senators and Representatives in their respective Galleries take precedence over other uses of the studios.

The House and Senate Gallery studios are open to accredited reporters and technicians, Members of Congress, congressional press secretaries, and gallery staff. Additional congressional staff may accompany their Members in the House and Senate Gallery Studios at the discretion of the Gallery staff if space allows.

Interviews given by credentialed members of the Congressional News Galleries are permitted in the House and Senate studios and the Rayburn studio with prior clearance with Gallery staff.

Gallery members may not list Gallery addresses or the main phone numbers of the Galleries on their business cards or stationery. Booth occupants must also have an office outside the Capitol.

House and Senate rules require appropriate and professional attire for access to the Speakers Lobby and the Senate Chamber. (For example, men are required to wear jacket and tie, and women may wear suits, skirts and slacks)

Congressional Radio-TV Gallery credentials may be used only when covering news stories. They may not be used to gain access to Capitol grounds or buildings when working for non-news clients or for other purposes unrelated to news coverage.

Rules of Congress prohibit Gallery members from engaging in lobbying, advertising, publicity, or promotion work for any individual, corporation, organization or government.

Interviews with non-members and officials are permitted at authorized stakeout areas except for at the Senate policy luncheon stakeout – non members of Congress must be escorted by a Congressional member to the microphone.

Equipment must not be left unattended.

SECTION (x)

Portable Television Coverage

The Capitol Grounds - use of portable equipment is not restricted except when it impedes the flow of vehicular or pedestrian traffic, or creates a safety concern, or in heightened security situations when press may be restricted to certain areas.

East Front - portable coverage for interviews is allowed at the base of the House, Senate and Center steps. Approval of the Member is required. News organizations must notify the House Gallery and Senate Gallery of coverage plans.

West Front - portable coverage is allowed at the base of the steps and in the grassy areas. News organizations must notify the Galleries of coverage plans

Arrival shots - portable arrival shots are allowed. There are two pre-designated locations on the East Front near both Carriage Entrances which require approval of the appropriate Sergeant At Arms and the Galleries (see stakeout and photo op rules).

Portable Interviews - in the House and Senate office building corridors. Approval of specific Member's office is required. Equipment is not restricted as long as it does not impede the flow of pedestrian traffic.

SECTION (x)

Stake-out and Photo Op Rules

All stake-outs must be pre-approved by the appropriate Gallery. The only exceptions are stake-outs in the designated Free Press Areas (See: Section 7x at page x).

Some stake-outs and photo ops require Gallery escorts. Contact the appropriate Gallery for details.

Camera positions will generally be assigned on a first come, first served basis; however, the Gallery staff may give preferred positions to organizations providing live or pool coverage.

Mobile cutaway cameras are permitted at stake-outs as long as the camera does not interfere with other participants.

Stakeouts must allow for traffic flow in corridors and should not block doorways.

Reporters and producers are not required to remain inside the stakeout area.

Unattended tripods may not be used to reserve camera positions at stake-outs.

Food and drink are not permitted at stake-outs in the Capitol Building and Capitol Visitors Center. Gallery members must clean up after themselves in stake-out areas.

RTCA members must notify the House Gallery staff in order to use the permanent stakeout area outside the House Chamber opposite the Will Rogers statue .

At the stake-out area in the Hall of Columns on the first floor of the Capitol near the South Door. Approval of the House Sergeant At Arms through the House Gallery is required

SECTION (x)

Radio Coverage

Radio coverage is allowed throughout the Capitol complex and the Capitol Visitor Center subject to the following rules:

In the Rayburn Room: Only when the House is not in session.

In the Old Supreme Court: Approval is through the Senate Curator. Contact the Senate Radio-TV Gallery to request approval.

In the Old Senate Chamber: Approval is through the Senate Curator. Contact the Senate Radio-TV Gallery to request approval.

In Members offices: Approval from Member's press office is required.

On Capitol grounds: Interviews must not interfere with pedestrian or vehicular traffic.

SECTION (x)

Rules for Broadcast Coverage of House and Senate Committee Hearings

You must notify the appropriate Gallery of your intentions to cover a hearing so that the Gallery staff may make the necessary arrangements.

All electronic equipment must be installed at least 15 minutes before the hearing is scheduled to begin. If you are late, you may not be allowed to set up.

Camera positions will be generally assigned on a first-come, first-served basis. However, the Gallery staff may give preferred tripod positions to organizations providing live, pool, or gavel-to-gavel coverage.

Each committee has its own coverage rules. In general, tripods and microphones may not be broken down or removed during a hearing except during a break or recess in the hearing. Cameras may be removed from tripods for cutaways in some hearing rooms.

Broadcast technicians must maintain decorum at all times and conduct themselves in a way that does not interfere with the hearing.

Unattended tripods may not be used to reserve camera positions inside a committee hearing room.

Many Congressional committees prohibit food and drink in their hearing rooms.

Rules for cutaway crews during hearings vary, depending on the committee. In crowded hearings, crews may be required to rotate into the room to shoot cutaways.

SECTION (x)

Free Press Areas (see below map)

Free press areas are designated for stand up use at all times. Credentialed members of the press may use these areas at all times.

Crews may set up tripods in these areas without obtaining tripod permits.

Videotaping or filming with a tripod in any other area requires a tripod permit. Approval through the appropriate Gallery is needed. Tripods are to be set up only on grassy areas (except at the location near the fountain).
